8. Run as many Analysis Tutorials that you checked on Page 12 as you have time for.
9. You have, in the last section, run the only STEPS Tutorial. Only one STEPS tutorial is provided because tutorials cannot include the student interaction that is such an essential part of the effectiveness of the STEPS programs.
10. When you have finished the tutorials, scroll down to  and share your comments.
- Go to Page 5 to learn about integrating Writer's Workbench into your lesson plans. -

11. Consider the ways that you might integrate the various STEPS programs and Analyses into your class plans.

- You might use the STEPS programs to introduce a subject, to follow up on a class lecture or discussion, or to use as a review.
- You might use a program on a computer projector, or you might have the student work through the program and print it on the computer.
- You might have pairs of students work on a STEPS program; if you do, be sure that they print two copies. These printed copies can be placed in a binder to serve as a handbook for your student for your class and for future classes.

12. This chart suggests ways that the To Be programs might be integrated into lessons plans.

One way to integrate “To Be”	Second way to integrate “To Be”
First Class Period	First Class Period
1. Help memorize “to be” verbs	1. Use a computer projector to lead the class through STEPS-Verbs-To BE
2. Compare to stronger verbs	2. Use a computer projector to show the “to be” tutorial
3. Show examples of active and passive verbs	3. Ask students to write answers to a series of questions over the material covered in 1 and 2
4. Use a computer projector to show the “to be” tutorial	4. Discuss answers to questions and collect students’ papers.
5. Assign STEPS-Verbs-To BE Bring printouts to class	5. Assign STEPS-Verbs-To BE Bring printouts to class
Second Class Period	Second Class Period
1. Discuss printouts of STEPS-Verbs-To BE; and, then, hand in.	1. Discuss printouts of STEPS-Verbs-To BE; and, then, hand in.
2. Ask students to write answers to a series of questions over the material covered in STEPS-Verbs-To BE and in the “to be” tutorial	2. With students in small groups, show a paragraph (or hand out a paragraph) and ask each group to rewrite the paragraph to eliminate “to be” verbs.
3. Discuss answers to questions and collect students’ papers.	3. Discuss revisions that groups made to eliminate “to be” verbs.
Third Class Period	Third Class Period
1. Hand back students’ papers	1. Review “to be” verbs
2. With students in small groups, hand out a paragraph and ask each group to rewrite the paragraph to eliminate “to be” verbs.	2. Compare sentences that include “to be” verbs to revisions that do not include “to be” verbs.
3. Discuss revisions that groups made to eliminate “to be” verbs.	3. Review rules and examples of active and passive verbs.
Test: Given paragraph and analysis, rewrite to eliminate “to be” verbs.	Test: Describe this room in at least 150 words (avoid “to be” verbs).

The Third Step in Getting To Know Whatever You Want To Know About Writer's Workbench

Whenever you have questions, email your question(s) to the following email address.
Email your question to wwbinfo@emo.com

Example of a question that you might have-

What is included in the Vocab STEPS program under Punctuation?

You will receive an answer as complete as the following answer.

The STEPS program “Vocab” under “Punctuation” is a program that serves as an effective base for the other STEPS programs under “Punctuation” and for many of the analyses because it covers the following vocabulary:

Sentence, Clause, Kinds of clauses, Kinds of dependent clauses, Adverbial clause, Subordinate conjunctions, Adjective clause, Relative pronouns, Antecedent, Kinds of adjective clauses, Restrictive, Non-restrictive, Phrase, Coordinate conjunctions, Series, Comma, Colon, Semicolon

2. Let's begin with the term that identifies the grammatical unit that may include all of the other terms. Sentence Every English sentence, when spoken, has one of the two following sound patterns. I love you. All statements and questions other than yes-and-no questions Do you love me? All yes-and-no questions	2. Direction: Type an X in the [] before each group of words that is a sentence. Listen for the sound pattern. Note: One sentence includes two sentences. Listen for two sentence sound patterns. [] My birthday is Monday. [] This Monday is a very inconvenient time for a party. [] Would you have time on Friday? [] Although I come. [] In the morning of the third day of the week. [] Yes, I will come; but I cannot stay. [] Which makes me happy. [] What makes you happy? [] Vacationing with my family makes me happy because we have fun. [] Stop! Check your answers by reading each item aloud. Did you find the seven sentences with one of those sentences made up of two sentences? Click <Next Page> button.

You might wonder about how you can orient students to working in and with Writer's Workbench.

An Orientation for Students is available that will center on students using four of the tutorials. You may have that Orientation to copy for your students by emailing wwbinfo@emo.com.

Your students will heighten their writing skills and their class, state, SAT, and ACT sentence structure and writing test scores as a result of their work with Writer's Workbench.
